“Shwiqhiq Pi mun” (Frog and Moon) found its place at Clatsop Community College – the upper entry in Columbia Hall. The Chinook Power Board first came to Clatsop Community College as part of the Pacific Rim Art Exhibit: Emergence from Place–Neo-Traditional Indigenous Art held in 2012 at the College’s Art Center Gallery.

Frog and Moon is a panel hand carved from red and yellow cedar. The artist is Greg Robinson, a Chinook Tribal Member. It is modeled after traditional panels that leaned against longhouses as a gesture of welcoming, an expression of family identity and spiritual protection. Acquisition of this important work was made possible by generous faculty, staff, and community donations.
Message from the President

As the region’s only public postsecondary educational institution, Clatsop Community College embraces a mission that is both expansive and diverse.

Still, at CCC it boils down to creating the conditions for success for our students. And that requires being student-centered, or as I prefer calling it being student-centric.

Being student-centric at CCC means having an unshakeable focus on student learning; students are our business. It means having clearly defined pathways to student success. It also means data-informed decision-making and having an improvement-oriented ethos throughout our campuses. It also requires a community that supports and engages with the College to continuously improve the programs and services offered.

Here are just a few examples of success achieved this past year. Rachel Fackler’s dream of becoming an art teacher is definitely within reach. Rachel credits a considerable part of her success to the guidance and support she received from her advisors in the Talent Search and Upward Bound programs during her middle school and high school years. She earned an Associate of Arts, Oregon Transfer degree (AAOT) in June and will enroll at Portland State University in the fall where she plans to be an art major and earn a minor in secondary education. After graduating from college Rachel looks forward to working or studying in New York for a year.

Jennifer Challis was named to the All-Oregon Academic Team in 2013. She started attending CCC when she was 16, and earned her first Associate’s degree at 18, graduating with High Honors. She just completed a second Associate’s degree with the intention of transferring to a technical school and pursuing a Bachelor’s degree in engineering with a focus in renewable energy.

2013 Commencement:
Clatsop Community College conducted its annual commencement ceremony on Friday, June 14 at the Liberty Theater in Astoria. Oregon State Treasurer Ted Wheeler was the featured speaker.
Jo Black served as the Master of Ceremonies and Faculty Marshal, and Thomas Stewart delivered the Student Marshal’s Presentation. President Galizio presented diplomas and certificates to 159 candidates. At a separate ceremony, 208 students received their GED Credential.

Thomas Stewart is an USCG Active Duty Veteran who participated in search and rescue missions and law enforcement operation on the Columbia River Bar. He was also named to the All-Oregon Academic Team this year. Following active duty, Thomas began his college education at CCC pursuing an Associate of General Studies degree in order to begin a career in allied health. He received this degree in June and will start in the CCC Nursing program this fall.

In the pages that follow, Clatsop Community College proudly shares with you just a sampling of some of the noteworthy student, community and institutional successes of the 2012-2013 academic year.

On behalf of everyone at Clatsop Community College, I wish to express my deepest gratitude and appreciation for the support of the citizens and businesses that help sustain our mission of creating opportunities for the people of this unique and dynamic region.

I hope that you find our Report to the Community both informative and engaging.

See you on campus!

Expanding Programs Build Student Success

Unique Designation for CCC Maritime Training Program

Clatsop Community College’s Maritime Science Program received approval from the United States Coast Guard (USCG) as an approved Training Ship Program that allows those successfully completing the course of study to be credited with 360 days of sea service, training and testing towards an endorsement as Able Seaman Special (AB-Special) or Operator of Uninspected Passenger Vessels (OUPV) upon Near Coastal or Inland Waters.

With this approval, CCC joins an elite group of USCG-approved Training Ship Programs, and is the only community college in the nation authorized to provide 360 days of sea service credit toward the AB-Special endorsement. Completing the Associate of Applied Science (AAS)/Vessel Operations degree with the addition of two courses will allow issuance of this critical level of training credential. Both the AB-Special and the OUPV endorsement lead to greater job opportunities and higher earning potential.

State Grant Launches Welding Program Expansion

Expansion of the CCC Welding and Fabrication Program received the green light from the State of Oregon with completion of a $9.6-million sale of state lottery bonds to fund career and technical, or STEM (science, technology, engineering and math) programs at all seventeen community colleges.

Clatsop Community College will receive $281,785 toward its welding and fabrication program expansion project that will provide new equipment and upgraded facilities. These funds will enable CCC to develop a Welding Associate of Applied Science (AAS) degree that connects to the American Welding Society Level II Advanced Welder designation. The Advanced training will incorporate pipe welding and various fabrication techniques to build upon the skills already gained in the Entry-Level curriculum. Program and equipment additions will include state-of-the-art virtual welding simulation; pipe welding, beveling and bending equipment; additional student work space; new welding booths; and upgrades to the welding shop ventilation system. CCC will provide an additional $25,000 in locally-raised funds to complete the project.

College Continues Commitment to Arts and Culture through Wide-ranging Activities

The College’s long-standing Arts & Ideas series yielded another year of vigorous programming through the cooperative activities of CCC faculty and staff in collaboration with community arts organizations including the Astoria Music Festival, North Coast Chorale, North Coast Printmakers’ Collective, North Coast Symphonic Band, North Oregon Coast Symphony and KMUN Troll Radio.

An exciting partnership was developed with the Ft. George Brewery & Public House. Ales & Ideas, a new CCC lecture series, presented seven inspiring and informative free public programs including:

- Autism in Wonderland: How Asperger’s Syndrome Influenced Lewis Carroll’s Writing with Julie Brown
- Word Play: An Evening of Performance Poetry with Nancy Cook and Dave Densmore
- Calendrics: The Mathematics of Calendars with Richard Beveridge
- Brain Rewiring for Dummies: How to Change Your Cognitive Competency with Marian Derlet
- Creativity: The Mystery of the Muse with Kristin Shauck
- Historic Preservation: The Original Sustainable Building Technique with Lucien Swerdloff and John Goodenberger
- The Columbia River Estuary: Natural & Human Changes in the Past 150 Years with Jon Graves
The Clatsop Community College Foundation was established in 1960 as an independent, nonprofit, community-based organization with the purpose of creating resources to support higher education within Clatsop County. The CCC Foundation is managed by a volunteer board of directors charged with generating funds, maximizing investment opportunities, and expanding resources.

Repeat Success - 2013 Arts & Experience Dinner & Auction
The 2013 Arts & Experience Dinner and Auction returned to the Astoria Golf & Country Club for another exciting evening. Almost $90,000 was generated to support the students and programs of CCC. A successful Special Appeal held during the event will allow the CCC Foundation to fund four priority projects of CCC:

- Completion of a Learning Commons in the CCC Dora Badollet Library
- Installation of communication monitors at all three CCC campuses
- Acquisition of critical equipment to enhance the EMT training program
- Continuing repair of the historic Estey organ at the CCC Performing Arts Center

The Foundation expresses its deep appreciation to the event’s signature sponsor - Pacific Power; to its Presenting Sponsor – Oregon Health & Science University; and to its additional Supporting, Partner and Friend sponsors as well as all who attended.

Local Organizations Join Forces to Sustain CCC Nursing Program
Clatsop Community College’s successful nursing program was the beneficiary of three generous gifts to support its continued operation and success during the 2012-2013 academic year. “We’re gratified by the tremendous response for our nursing program,” says CCC President Lawrence Galizio. “The CCC nursing program enjoys one of Oregon’s highest success rates. Its graduates serve our region in a wide variety of healthcare settings.”

Major sustaining donations were received from Columbia Memorial Hospital and Providence Health & Services. In addition, the Clatsop Community College Foundation committed $20,000 to this important training program.

Foundation Grants Help Sustain Local Arts
The Foundation continued its relationship as fiscal agent with a consortium of local arts and cultural organizations known as Partners for the PAC. In addition to supporting ongoing fundraising activities by the Partners, the Foundation served as applicant for a technical assistance grant from the Ford Family Foundation.

Local Scholarships Help Bridge the Funding Gap
The CCC Foundation holds numerous endowed and temporarily restricted scholarship funds to benefit Clatsop students. The Foundation also serves as a vehicle for other community groups to support CCC students. With reductions in federal financial aid and rising tuition, local scholarships are increasingly important for student success and completion. During the past year, scholarships totaling more than $69,000 were awarded from the following funds held by the Foundation:

- Allan & Marie Gann Maritime Scholarship
- Amelia Kuitemt Scholarship
- Barbara E. Knudsen Foundation Scholarship
- Betty Gray ECE Scholarship
