

COLLEGE ADMISSIONS

Admissions to the College is open to high school graduates or to non-high school graduates who are at least 18 years of age and who can profit from the instruction. Ability to profit from the instruction may be established through an evaluation of previous education, work experience, appropriate testing, and other relevant factors. Individuals under 18 years of age may be admitted as special students or as part-time or summer students.

Admission to the College is open to all applicants without regard to an individual's race, religion, sex, national origin, disability, Vietnam era veteran status, parental or marital status, or age if over 18 years, or because of the race, religion, sex national origin, disability, parental or marital status, or age of any other persons with whom the individual associates. However, enrollment in specific courses may be limited by such factors as class size, academic or ability prerequisites, including proficiency in the English language or mathematics and specific physical capabilities necessary for meeting minimum performance requirements.

The College reserves the right to deny admission to applicants whose admission is judged to be potentially detrimental to the institution. While responsibility for evaluating candidates for admission has been delegated to officers of the College, the Board of Directors reserves the right of final judgment in cases referred by the Administration.

The President will develop procedures for the admission of students under the age of 18.
