PROLITERACY

An organization that advocates for adult literacy, provides training opportunities, and publishes study materials for students and research for practitioners. In a former life, it was called Laubach, a reading system using phonetics and pictures. Their website is @ <http://www.proliteracy.org/>

Pronunciation Teaching Tip:

Help your student pronounce better with short lists of words with similar sounds. For example:

dice, , mice, nice, rice, vice bad, dad, mad, pad, sad
dear, ear, hear, near, rear

Stick with words that are common because our ESL students generally don't like pronouncing words they don't know- focus on pronunciation, not meaning, in these sorts of exercises. Target sounds your student has trouble with- for Spanish speakers, the vowels a, e, and i are particularly difficult. J, h, and g also give them trouble. Diphthongs are tough, too. Diphthongs are sounds formed by the combination of two vowels in a single syllable in which the sound begins as one vowel and moves toward another (as in coin, loud, and side).

We are fortunate to be welcoming a few new tutors to the group.

Dr. Stephen Reder, professor in the Department of Applied Linguistics at Portland State has done extensive research on adult literacy, and particularly on how adults learn language, acquire and use literacy skills, and on the role of language, literacy and technology in everyday life. Below find a summary of a recently published report generated by Reder's research.

The Impact of ABS Program Participation on Long-Term Economic Outcomes considers the long-term impact of participation in ABS programs on individuals' earnings. The research results show that individuals who participate in ABS programs have higher future earnings as a result of participating, and their income premiums are larger with more intensive participation. Minimal levels of participation do not produce statistically significant premiums, but 100 hours or more of attendance were found to equate to extra earnings of $9,621 per year, in 2013 dollars.

I just had lunch at a former literacy student's new restaurant. His tutor was there, too, and what a treat to see the fruit of their hard work- it was always this student's goal to open a business and he has done it!

His participation in the program has contributed to his creating a business now employing at least 4 people. (And he's looking for more help!) This student studied with his volunteer for at least 3 years, all the while working at least 2, and sometimes, 3 jobs.

If you would like a copy of Professor Reder's report, let me know and I will get you a copy.

The post-testing season has arrived! Yes, it's that time of the school year when all students who have acquired at least 40 hours of instruction and homework need to take a follow-up test. This period begins April 1 and goes to about the first week in June. The good news is if the student signs up for the 2015-16 school year by October 15, 2015, this post-test serves as the pre-test for the new school year. I will be in touch, but let's all begin to calculate hours and make arrangements to get our students tested. Our funding is dependent on this process. Thanks for your help!
